

Survival Water Purification: Boil Water in a Plastic Bottle

Categories : Food & Water, Urban Survival, Wilderness Survival

In a survival situation where you have nothing else to use but a plastic bottle, this is an excellent technique to know... It seems you can find plastic bottles left everywhere in the woods and round rives these days.

I am guessing some folks are going to be concerned about plastic toxins leaching into the water. Personally I am more worried about dying from dehydration from either not drinking the unclean water, or as a result of drinking the unclean water and getting sick.

It's not ideal, but if you are in the wilderness and you have a fire, but no fireproof cup/can etc, this is something handy to know.