If you are anything like us, your tomatoes have done great this year! This was a huge relief for us as the last two years we have completely lost both years' crops to tomato blight...

Even though it has been a good year for tomatoes, we are still inevitably left with a load of green tomatoes that just won't ripen up now. Sure, you can fry them up, but I can only eat so many fried green tomatoes and this lead me on a search for some other way to use up our green tomatoes... This is when I found this green tomato jam recipe. Not quite sure how it will turn out, but we are going to give it a go. If you are interested in trying it out, you can get the recipe via the link below.
