How To Become A Backyard Beekeeper

There seems to be a real resurgence with beekeeping, and that's a good thing, as one thing is for sure - the bees need our help right now. If you have large garden/backyard, and you are into growing your own/homesteading, I highly recommend you consider keeping some bees. Not only will you get loads of delicious local honey, all those extra bees will work hard to pollinate all your flowers, fruit and vegetables.
Whilst there is a learning curve, beekeeping isn't all that complicated or difficult. I think lots people think it's expensive and you need loads of land to keep bees. Neither is true! If you are interested in finding out a bit more about getting started with beekeeping, head over to 'One Good Thing By Jillee’ below and check out her post on the subject.

How To Become A Backyard Beekeeper

(Image from: One Good Thing By Jillee)