How To Build A Strong Shelter In A Wet Forest (Ray Mears)

Categories : Wilderness Survival

The last Ray Mears video we featured (about making a bow drill and starting a fire), was so popular, we have brought the good man back to show you how to build a lean-to shelter in the forest.

This shelter is designed to keep you dry and very warm in conjunction with the long fire. This is a classic, simple to build shelter to build, as long as you have an axe.

Many people don't carry an axe in their kit due to the weight, but if you are planing on surviving in the wilderness a small axe is a must have. There are actually quite a few light weight axes designed for camping/survival.

This one from SOG Specialty Knives is a great little axe to have in the pack.
