Firstly I have to say that biscuits (or scones as they are also known), with jam, cream and a cup of tea, is a piece of heaven on a plate! In the UK it is known as a cream tea... Probably not to be enjoyed daily, but it is a complete joy. Actually I should probably warn you about baking these biscuits, as you WILL overindulge!

If you want to have a go at making your own homemade biscuits I highly recommend you head over the 'Frugally Sustainable' and check out the awesome recipe and tutorial, which is complete with some great photos along the way. Just be warned - these biscuits are easy to make and they are delicious, you will eat too many of them!
