How To Make Your Own Moisturizing Lotion Bars

Categories : Homesteading

When is a bar of soap NOT a bar of soap? When it's a lotion bar!

Looks like soap, but isn't.

Moisturizing lotion bars are hard (like soap!) at room temperature, but once you hold them for a few seconds your body heat starts to soften them and you can rub off some lotion. Pretty cool idea - they would make excellent gifts.

You can make your lotions bars any size or shape you like. You can also take them out and about with you in a small tin. Alternatively leave one by the sink and after you wash your hands, show them some love (guys too!).

I think the best thing about the lotion bars is the all natural ingredients, all three of them... The only ingredients in these bars is beeswax, shea butter and coconut oil, that's it!

If you want to make your own lotion bars, or you simply want to find out some more about them, head over to 'One Good Thing by Jillee' and check out the recipe and tutorial.

How To Make Your Own Lotion Bars

Make sure you check out some of the other cool tips and ideas whilst there!