Here's the thing - I have asked the question several times on the K.W.N Facebook page, is prepping a whole family activity, or are you prepping alone, but for the whole family? From the replies I received it would appear that there are an awful lot of individuals who take care of all the family's emergency preparedness activities by themselves. This is fine, but what happens if something happens to person in charge of the family's preparedness?

Below is an excellent post about the importance of writing a letter, or some instructions, containing all the important information regarding all the preps, routes, plans, money, weapons and tactics etc. Obviously it would be better if the family as a whole were involved and up-to-date with the emergency preparedness tactics and plans but if that is not the case, leaving some clear instructions for your family to follow, in your absence, is the next best thing. Check out the post and find out more below. Give the gift of preparedness!

One Of The Best Preparedness Gift, Costs You Nothing...

(Photo from: tnark)