So you know that a root cellar is the best way of storing food at a low temperature without electricity, but you are not quite sure how to go about building a root cellar or storing the food in it...

Well today is your lucky day as the super nice folks over at 'Common Sense Homesteading' have done a great post all about how/where to build your own DIY root cellar, together with information on how best to store your foods. Check it out below.

Root Cellars 101- Root Cellar Design And Use

(Photo from: Common Sense Homesteading)