I would love to have my own beehive and make our own honey, but unfortunately it is just not feasible where we currently live. My wife's grandmother kept bees and she has very fond childhood memories of her grandmother tending the bees, and of course, LOTS of honey!

Other than the taste, nutritional content and the home remedies, one of the most remarkable things about honey is that it has an indefinite shelf-life. When stored correctly, honey just doesn't spoil and it can easily outlive several generations. Your great, great, great Grandchildren could enjoy honey you stored today...
