Where to Hide Your Food (And a Few Places You Shouldn't)

Food storage is a very important prepping activity but done wrong could ruin your food and lessen your chance of survival. If you store food with a shelf life of 3 years or less you need to rotate, rotate, rotate. Food with a shelf life of 10 years or more is perfectly fine to hide away for a rainy day and you could almost forget about it until an emergency happened.

Where you put food is another thing you need to be sure of. If you place food in the wrong places, you may just have an emergency in an emergency - you wont have any edible food. I found a great article explaining where food should and a few places they shouldn't.

Where to Hide Your Food (And a Few Places You Shouldn't)

Picture Credit: survivalandbeyond.net