I have just found this company called Zigloo and they design and build homes using old shipping containers. The house above is just one of many they have designed and built.

Zigloo also sell house plans for people to self-build their own houses from containers. I am guessing that if you are brave enough or you happen to have the right skills, you could build a house from old containers very cheaply, and also very quickly...

If you check out their website below, there are another 16 photos of the interior and exterior of this house. The interior is amazing, you would never know the house was built from containers!

Zigloo Domestique - A House Built From Shipping Containers! (includes 16 additional photos)